Welcome Address

Dear Colleagues,

I am happy to welcome you to the 16th Ghana International Book Fair.

A year ago, it was a bold step moving to the Accra International Conference Centre, considering the huge financial implications. However, by virtue of our ultimate goal of making the GIBF the book fair of choice in Sub-Saharan Africa and the impressive ambience and facilities the AICC provides, we had no option. Today, I can confidently say it was the best decision for the GIBF. The steady progress made so far gives me confidence about the future prospects. I know there is still much more to improve upon but counting on your unflinching support, we shall surely get there.

The theme for this year's fair, "Revitalizing the Book Chain for National and International Corporation" seeks to bring to the fore the crucial need for an effective book value chain for a thriving book industry in Ghana. Featuring on the list of events are a number of workshops and seminars carefully selected and well thought through, to meet the capacity building needs of all participants.

ADEA through the support of the Global Book Alliance is organizing a workshop on the use of the Bloom Software to develop books in local languages, a seminar on open licensing and a forum for APNET members to discuss the future of Publishing in Africa. The Ghana Book Trust through the support of CODE is launching the Read with Me Campaign and the Regional Burt Awards, all as part of events for the 16th GIBF. There will also be a stakeholder engagement on the enactment of the textbook development and distribution policy into law and many other educative and entertaining programs for the general public.

Organizing events of this nature will be near impossible without the kind support of our sponsors. On this note, permit me to say a big thank you to Graphic Communications Group, ATUU Festival of Arts and Culture, Jay Kay Industries and Investments, Access Bank, Type Company Ltd, Innolink Ltd, Sakoa Press, Buck Press, Voltic, Aquafresh, and Wrenco Ltd. Not forgetting our media partners: EIB Network, Family TV Network, Gold Street Business Newspaper, DDP Outdoor, Smile photography and EPP Books Services. We also say a big thank you to the Mayor of Accra for throwing his weight behind this noble event and accepting to host our international participants for dinner in his residence this evening. We thank all our guests who accepted our invitation and graced this occasion with their presence.

Join us at this same venue from 29th August to 1st September, 2019 for the 17th GIBF which promises to be more exciting. We are looking forward to having a country of focus for next year's fair. Register and enjoy a 20% early bird discount from now to 31st December, 2019.

We hope that this fair exceeds both your business needs and expectations – however your feedback is invaluable to help us continue to develop the event. As such, if you do have any comments we would be delighted to hear from you.

On behalf of the whole team, welcome to the 16th GIBF and a big thank you to all our supporters for making this event successful.

God's Landmark Covenants With Man

These two books are out to reveal the state of the kingdom of God and His righteousness in the Garden of Eden, which were lost to man, which Christ came to seek and to save (Luke 19:10) and which we are urged to seek.

These books complement each other, revealing the Genesis and nature of sin in fallen man, and the works of the blood of Jesus and his body broken for us in restoring fallen man into the required purity in the glory of God.

This is a necessary requirement to enable the believer go boldly to the throne of grace.
